

Diana Patel, PhD Dr. Diana Patel currently serves as a Project Coordinator in the Center for Public Policy and Health at Kent State University. In her role, she serves as the project director for a SAMHSA-funded mental health awareness training program for local public-school districts and charter schools in Northeast Ohio. Dr. Patel received her PhD in Prevention Science from Kent State University (KSU). Prior to taking on her role at Kent State University, she served as the Senior Director for Research and Analytics at Summit Education Initiative, a non-profit focused on improving personal and regional prosperity through K-12 educational attainment. She also completed two postdoctoral research fellowships at Northeast Ohio Medical University (NEOMED) and Kent State University. In addition to her PhD, she also holds a Master of Public Health and a Master of Arts in Political Science from the University of Akron. Dr. Patel's primary research interests are focused on how social issues impact vulnerable populations, as well as how systems change can be utilized to improve population and social health.