

Paula H. Song, PhD, MHSA, MA, is professor of health services management and policy and dean of the College of Public Health at The Ohio State University. Dr. Song's research expertise includes health care finance, accountable care organizations (ACOs), payment reform, community benefit, and utilization and access for vulnerable populations, including the underinsured and children with disabilities. Her current research interests focus on innovative financing and delivery mechanisms to improve the delivery of health care. Dr. Song teaches graduate level courses in healthcare financial management and has co-authored several leading textbooks in healthcare finance. Dr. Song is the 2020 recipient of the John D. Thompson Prize by the Association of University Programs in Health Administration. Dr. Song received her Ph.D. in health services organization and policy, and master's degrees in health services administration and applied economics, all from the University of Michigan.