

Annabelle M. Fisher - Annabelle Fisher is a Public Health major at Bowling Green State University with a growing interest in health policy and data-informed decision-making. She has contributed academic presentations and community engagement efforts, building a strong foundation in analyzing public health issues through data. Annabelle is particularly interested in applying practical, evidence-based approaches to complex and often controversial public health policy challenges.