

Norah Crossnohere, MHS, PhD is an Assistant Professor in the Division of General Internal Medicine at The Ohio State University College of Medicine and a Cancer Control Program Member at the Ohio State University Comprehensive Cancer Center (OSUCCC James). A patient-centered health services researcher with a focus on cancer screening programs in primary care, she earned her MHS and PhD from the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health. Her research centers on integrating patient preferences and evidence-based decision making into cancer screening, with particular expertise in multi-cancer early detection and emerging screening technologies.