

John Kennedy, MD – Dr. John Kennedy is the Chief Medical Officer (CMO) for the Ohio Department of Behavioral Health. Dr. Kennedy spent a decade at The Ohio State University, completing medical school, graduate school, and his psychiatry residency. He then continued his training in forensic psychiatry in New York, working in a maximum-security forensic unit upon graduation. In 2000, he returned to Ohio to serve as the Director of the Institute for Psychiatry and Law at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine, integrating the Forensic Psychiatry Fellowship into Summit Behavioral Healthcare and serving as the Director of Forensic Services at Summit. For the past 20 years, Dr. Kennedy has held CMO and VPMA positions in university, psychiatric, and general medical hospitals, with oversight of the medical staff office, quality, accreditation, case management and graduate medical education, and outpatient mental health programs.